HAGERMAN'S HEIR MUST KEEP PROMISE

The following from a Pasadena, California, paper will be of interest here where the late Dr. B. C. Hagerman lived and taught school many years ago:

"I direct that my daughter, Mary Winifred Hagerman Watson, pay to her son, Campbell Hagerman Watson, the sum of $5,000 on his twenty-first birthday, providing that he keeps his promise to me not to swear or smoke until then."

This is the concluding paragraph of the will of the late Dr. Barton C. Hagerman, retired physician, filed for probate yesterday. The estate is valued at approximately $25,000.

Young Hagerman, who is now 14 years old, resides with his parents at 840 South Burlington avenue. The $5,000 is to be taken from the income of property left the daughter. The property is located in Lexington, Ky., Dr. Hagerman's old home.

NORMAL EXAMS ON MAY 19 AND 20

Supt. B. F. Edwards has received the following letter from State Superintendent of Schools George Colvin, which is self explanatory. Mr. Edwards adds a postscript:

Frankfort, Ky., May 10
Supt. B. F. Edwards,
Richmond, Ky.,

Dear Supt.:—The teachers' examination for Eastern Kentucky State Normal students will be held by the faculty of the Normal School, on Friday and Saturday, May 19 and 20. You and your board will hold the examination for those applicants only who are bona fide residents of your county. Thus you will be relieved of the immense crowd that has formerly entered your examination.

Be very careful in opening the questions as indicated in the schedule, since there will be two examinations going on in the same town. See that none take advantage of this situation.

In all other matters you can follow the general rules for the examination. With sincere regards, I am very truly

GEO. COLVIN
State Superintendent
Applicants holding elementary certificates of the first grade which do not expire during the present school year will be barred from the examination. Those holding an elementary certificate of the second grade which does not expire will be admitted to this examination.

Will Rogers Amuses
Henry Morgenthau

Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, visited the Goldwyn studios while Will Rogers was filming "An Unwilling Hero" which will be shown at local theatres Monday. Mr. Morgenthau was introduced to the star who "pulled" some of his best "gags" for the entertainment of the distinguished visitor. "Turkey" said Rogers, "is the only other prohibition country in the world. If we had some of Turkey's other advantages we wouldn't mind prohibition so much." Rogers also said that Turkey and the Balkan countries had so many wars that they kept a percentage column just like baseball leagues do and that the nation with the best average led the league.

Henry Clay was United States Senator from Kentucky from 1806 to 1807, 1809 to 1811, 1831 to 1842 and 1849 to 1850, a total of 17 years.
